LinkedIn AND MODERN RECRUITING

- In 2015, LinkedIn, the world's largest professional network, was experiencing explosive growth, and it needed to hire the very best people quickly to support and fuel that growth.
- LinkedIn's for hiring approach used LinkedIn Talent Solutions, to attract and retain talent.
- At the same time, the company was creating new recruiting models that put it at the forefront of modern recruiting.

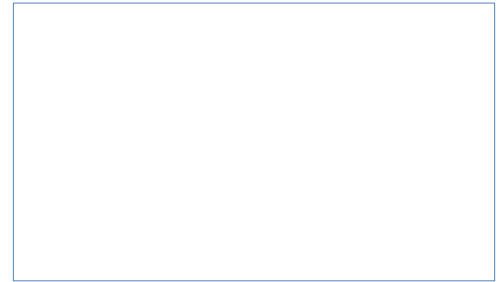

LinkedIn AND MODERN RECRUITING

- LinkedIn had done well so far in bringing in top talent. Nevertheless, as it rapidly scaled, the challenge was making sure the company could compete with other tech firms to attract enough highly skilled engineers.
- The LinkedIn's recruiting team used specific techniques on over 100 people to attract talented candidates for positions in engineering, sales, and other departments.

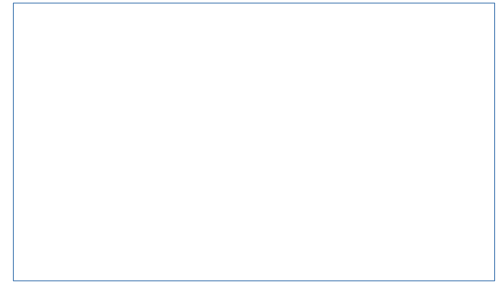

Linked AND MODERN RECRUITING

- Those techniques included:
 - 1) Replacing cold calling potential candidates with finding "warm connections" to them through their LinkedIn networks;
 - 2) Using a data-driven approach to identify the best candidates to pursue; and
 - 3) Developing personalized online relationships with top candidates.

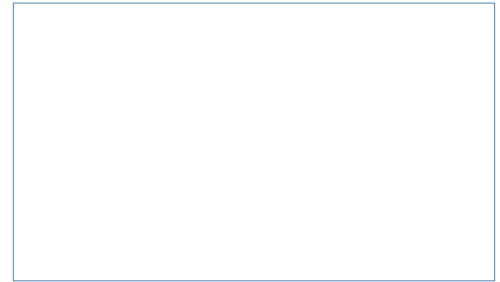

LinkedIn AND MODERN RECRUITING

- LinkedIn made internal hiring a priority. For external hires, the company focused heavily on recruiting passive candidates-people were who already gainfully employed and not necessarily looking for a new job.
- LinkedIn's proposition is focusing on the extraordinary opportunities employees were given for "transformation" once they joined the LinkedIn team.

LinkedIn AND MODERN RECRUITING

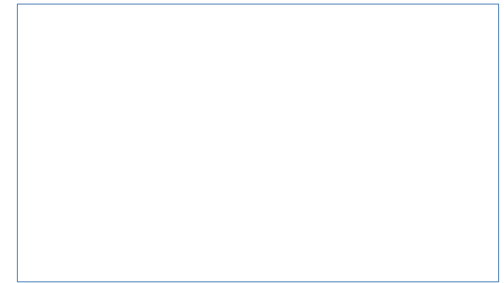

These opportunities included personal advancement through a smooth path to change jobs within LinkedIn if they wished, as well as formal and informal programs designed for employees to pursue their passions-and share their experiences.
