

IIT ROORKEE

NPTEL ONLINE
CERTIFICATION COURSE

Human Resource Analytics

Lecture 32

Training Analytics - 2

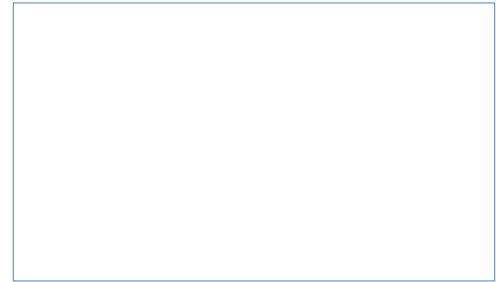

Dr. Abhishek Singh

Faculty-Human Resource
Management XLRI-Jamshedpur

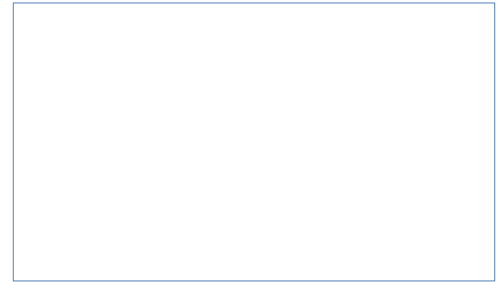

Content

- Training need analysis
- Which training should be given first to employees?
- To whom training should be given first
- Skill inventory analysis

Training Metrics (cont.)

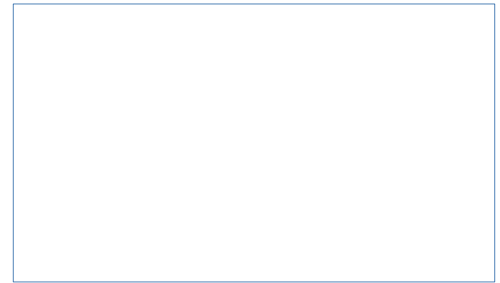

- How many training staff members are there for each employee?
- $\text{Employee trained} / \text{Total number of employees}$
- $\text{Total training cost} / \text{number of employees trained}$
- $\text{Total training cost} / \text{number of hours training provided}$

Training Need Analysis

Analysis of work Force

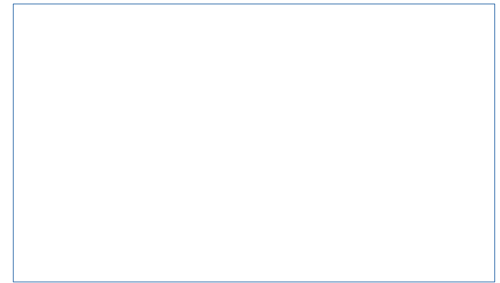

- Age
- Gender
- Work Experience
- Job category

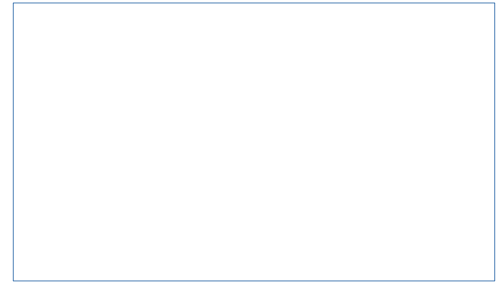

Training Need Analysis

Task Analysis

Task description	Frequency of performance (1-5)	Importance (1-5)	Difficulty (1-5)

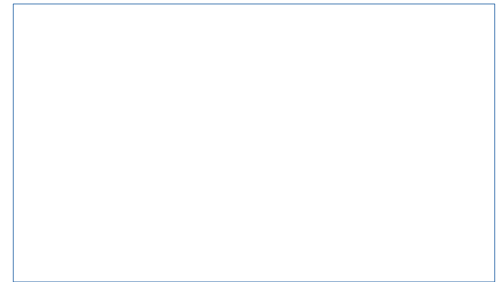

Which training should be given first to employees?

Name of the employees (Department wise, age wise)

Is not able to perform the basic tasks	Understands the basic principles can perform the task with assistance or direction	Perform routine with reliable results works with minimal supervision	Performs complex and multiple tasks can coach and teach others	Considered an expert in his job can describe, teach and lead others
Percent

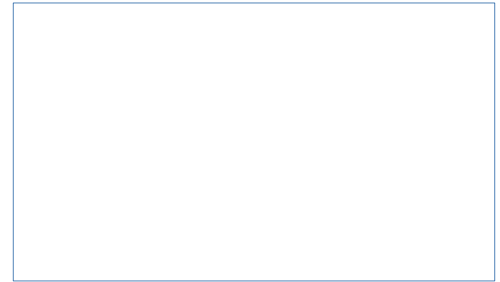

To whom training should be given first

Employee readiness for training

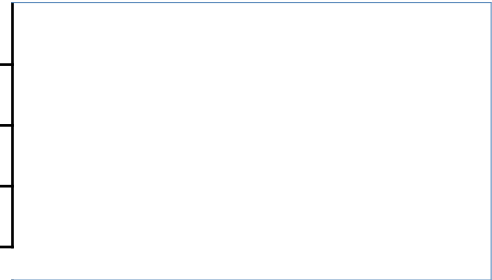

- Attitude
- Motivation to learn
- Basic Skills

% of employees are ready for training

Skill inventory analysis

Available skills department wise	Required skill department wise	Current Level of skills (Performance rating)	Required level of skills
Teamwork		High, Average, Low	High, Average, Low

Thank You

